The Bulletin: Friday 7th February 2025

Dear Parents

As we move further into the term, I am continually amazed by the enthusiasm and dedication of our pupils, staff, and parents. It has been a wonderfully busy few weeks, and I am delighted to share some highlights with you from the past week.

Yesterday, our junior pupils had the most incredible experience this week as they took part in the Young Voices concert in Manchester—an event that brings together school choirs from across the country for an unforgettable evening of music and performance. The children sang their hearts out, and their energy and enthusiasm were truly inspiring. A huge thank you to Mrs. Lorimer and her team for organising and leading this fantastic opportunity, and of course, to all the parents who supported the trip. Your encouragement and involvement make these experiences possible, and we are incredibly grateful.

This week, we have been focusing on the importance of children's mental well-being as part of Children's Mental Health Week. Through a range of activities, workshops, and discussions, pupils have been encouraged to explore ways to express themselves and build resilience. Mental health is just as important as physical health, and we are committed to ensuring that every child knows they have a voice and a support system around them. Thank you to all the staff and parents who have helped to make this week meaningful and supportive.

Form 3 enjoyed taking part in NSPCC Number Day, a fantastic event that brings mathematics to life while raising funds for a crucial cause. The children engaged in a variety of fun, number-based challenges and problem-solving activities, reinforcing their love for maths while supporting the vital work of the NSPCC.

Excitement is building as some of our UVI pupils prepare to depart for their ski adventure in Italy this weekend. This annual trip, part of the Alpha Schools Ski Programme, offers not only the thrill of skiing but also the chance to build friendships, resilience, and independence. I am immensely grateful to Mr. Jarman for leading the trip and ensuring the children have a safe and enjoyable experience. We look forward to hearing all about their adventures upon their return!

I hope you all have a lovely weekend

Messy Science Fun in Form 5!

Form 5 have been getting hands-on with their learning about the digestive system by recreating their own 'poo' (don't worry—not real!). A brilliantly messy experiment that helped bring science to life and showed exactly how our bodies process food. Learning has never been this much fun!
